Charlie Chaplin Stirs Up
Laughs and Chuckles in Latest Comedy

The face, the walk and the antics may be the same; but the laughs are different and the story is new in "Pay Day." Charlie Chaplin's latest release which opened yesterday at the Orpheum theatre. Such, at least, is the contention of the comedian himself, who asserts that he has never given so much thought and time to putting humor into anything as in this latest picture, a short comedy which is fast equalling in popularity the record attained by some of the star's longer releases. He has been almost eight months in completing the picture, which is a record for a short comedy. Included in the supporting cast are Edna Purviance, Mack Swain, Sydney Chaplin, Phyllis Allen, Henry Bergman, Loyal Underwood, John Rand and Allen Garbia.

Admirers of strong dramatic action will find much to satisfy them in "Courage," the Sidney Franklin production, the other picture on the program. Naomi Childers, the beautiful emotional actress, is the featured player, appearing in a role which gives her a wide range of opportunity for her talents. As Jean Blackmore, the devoted young wife whose innocent husband is snatched away from her by the long arm of the law, she interprets a part that cannot but shame every weakling who sees it on the screen.

Blackmore, from behind prison bars, secretly directs his plucky wife in the conduct of a great industry which helps his country win a war. The real murderer, for whose crime he was sentenced, makes a confession, and a dramatic reunion of the husband and wife, which also turns the romance of their son into a happy one, results.

Sam de Grasse, in the role of the husband, gives a splendid characterization.

Ogden Theatre Signs for
New Series of Big Releases

On account of the successful opening of D. W. Griffith's great picture, "Orphans of the Storm," at the Ogden theatre yesterday, the management feels the public wants and is entitled to see the biggest releases of the day. With this end in view, the management has concluded arrangements with Charles Knickerbocker, general manager of the Salt Lake exchange of the Goldwyn Pictures corporation, for their entire output in Ogden.

Among the big features worthy of special note and for early showing are Zane Grey's "When Romance Rides"; Rupert Hughes' "The Wall Flower"; Betty Compson in "Always the Woman"; Basil King in "The Dust Flower"; Zane Grey's "Golden Dreams" and Gouverneur Morris' "Yellow Men and Gold."

Mr. Knickerbocker on his recent visit here said there had been a persistent rumor in the motion picture industry of the Goldwyn Pictures corporation absorbing the organization of the Associated First National company. He said that while there is no definite information given out on the subject at present, there is every indication that such a state of affairs will shortly take place between these two powerful companies of makers, exhibitors and distributors of motion pictures. This would provide for one of the most influential and important film organizations in America. Within the last few months the Goldwyn people have been taking over a number of directors and important attaches of the First National and these recent acquisitions leave little doubt that before the leaves begin to fall the First National Exhibiting organization will be completely absorbed by Goldwyn.

The latest acquisition to the ranks of the Goldwyn concern is R. A. Walsh, who in the future will make all of his pictures for Goldwyn. Allen Holubar, Marshall Neilan and Maurice Tourneur have already come under the banner of Goldwyn, the latter now working on a special feature production for the firm.

"Peacock Alley" With Mae Murray Tomorrow at Alhambra

"Peacock Alley," which opens at the Alhambra tomorrow is one of the most delightful pictures of the season. It is a ravishing, dazzling Mae Murray presentation with all that magnificent and splendid which mark the blonde star's offerings on the screen. It is gorgeously costumed and excellently directed, the story running smoothly to its romantic conclusion.

It pictures the romance of a famed Parisian dancer who falls in love with a small town American youth and then finds that his home folks will not accept her because she has been a dancer. The couple go to New York, but troubles come thick and fast upon the two who, for a while, find life a very drab affair.

As the dancer in this colorful production, Mae Murray scored with the finest bit of characterization she has ever done. She is supported by a notable cast headed by Monte Blue as the youthful husband and this screen favorite brings to the part all that genius for which he is noted.
